Good jewelry is a staple for any outfit, adding life and expressing your individual flair, but finding the right piece at the right price is an all too time consuming challenge. Wouldn't it be nice to sit back with a Starbucks latte as the hottest designers flaunt their precious baubles for you to pick through at your leisure? BlueLuxe has decided to make that daydream a reality that is as close as your computer. Sporting the latest and greatest in designer handmade jewelry and Limoges boxes, www.blueluxe.com has something for everyone's unique style.

After perusing the website for just a few moments, I discovered numerous adornments that my life would simply not be complete without. Among the opulent treasures to be spied was a dazzling golden leaf necklace accented by pacific opal and glimmering Swarovski Crystals from Catherine Popesco's line La Vie Parisienne. As one of the many featured designers that can be found at BlueLuxe, Popesco's jewelry is created using the original molds Parisian workshops utilized throughout the 1900's. Constructed of "Old Silver" which is made through a unique French process of laying sterling silver or 14K gold plate over a copper base, each piece is truly an art to be treasured.

The exquisite necklace arrived in a silvery blue box topped by a navy satin ribbon ready to be given as the perfect gift to a loved one or as a luxurious personal indulgence. Beautifully presented and coupled with a certificate of authenticity, the intricately detailed craftsmanship was truly a sight to behold.

Stunned that such a remarkable piece of jewelry was handmade, I decided to check out the other incredible lines at www.blueluxe.com. What Is In Your Heart? (And What Is In Your Soul?) offers sterling silver case-like pendants that can be customized by adding a number of gold or CZ letters and charms, making each piece uniquely you. Ben-Amun by Isaac Manevitz, the son of a fabled jeweler for Egypt's royal family, dazzles with his awe inspiring crochet and bead pieces that have already graced the covers of several well-known publications. Anne Koplik brings vintage-inspired jewelry into the trendy, high fashion world of today with her line that showcases exquisite enameling and sparkling Swarovski crystals. Simple and elegant, Adina Jewelry Design pendants have graced the necks of celebrities such as Demi Moore, Brooke Shields as well as Debra Messing and have been featured on a variety of well known television shows.

BlueLuxe also offers a large selection of genuine, hand-painted porcelain Limoges boxes imported directly from France. Originally practical items for the storage of small personal products, Limoges have a 200+ year history as decorative works of art cherished by collectors around the world. Each box is hand-crafted containing small imperfections that add to its charm and unique nature.

With so much to offer, and with each line's products being truly a work of art in themselves, www.blueluxe.com is definitely a must see for anyone who dares to claim they have a sense of taste and fashion.
